“Giants often have six fingers and six toes. Note: this X-ray of a six-fingered giant hand.”
Many in the Illuminati Royal Families had 6 fingered Hands. (Reptilian Blood lines)

The amazing revelation that GIANTS are back on the earth in increasing numbers makes any Bible-based Christian think of our Lord’s words:

“But as the days of Noe were,
so shall also the coming of the Son of man be”
Matthew 24:37.

There were giants on earth before the Great Flood (and in the land of Canaan later on):
Deuteronomy 2:20; 3:13; and Joshua 17:15 et al.

DESPATCH has gathered three booklets on this startling subject for your perusal. These are only the tip of the iceberg.

1. GIANTS IN ISRAEL. From Barry Chamish, a reliable and sound reporter and investigator, a Jew who lives in Israel.
2. GIANTS IN THE SOLOMON ISLANDS. This is a report from a most concerned and astonished man, an Australian, Marius Boirayon
3. GIANTS IN HISTORY, from Stephen Quayle.

Read these reports, bring together the various points of information, and prepare yourselves for strange events in the future.

Unless, that is, we soon leave this fallen world in the RAPTURE!

Access our website www.despatch.cth.com.au for detailed info on the truth about the pre-millennial, pre-trib rapture. Find out about “orge” the wrath of God.
Strange UFO Sightings in Israel... Are Giants Returning to the Holy Land? by Barry Chamish

Are the Anakim or the Rephaim, the giants of the Bible, returning to Israel today? There are only two periods of recorded history when giants were reported in Israel; in biblical days from the time of the Flood to the ascension of King David and since 1993 in modern Israel.

The case for the return of giants to Israel is strong. In fact, what characterizes the current Israeli UFO wave from others in the world, is the sheer abundance of physical evidence left behind by the visitors. Consider the first incident to usher Israel into the UFO age.

On the evening of Sept. 28, 1987, a 27 year old auto mechanic, Ami Achrai was driving just south of Haifa when he saw what he thought might be a helicopter in distress hovering just above the sands of Shikmona Beach on the Mediterranean Sea. He stopped his car and to his utter amazement saw a disc-shaped craft which emitted a bright red flash before disappearing.

The chronicle also notes the booming voices of these giants. Two of them were apparently brought aboard Magellan’s flagship but died during their crossing; whether their remains were thrown overboard is not known.

Apparently Francis Drake caught them on a bad day when he pulled into Bahia San Julian in 1578: his forces skirmished with the “large men” who lived there, and the British sea-dog lost two of his sailors to them. Fifteen years later, Anthony Knyvet passed through the Straits of Magellan and confirmed sightings of the Patagones, reporting that some of them stood a towering 12 feet tall.

In the fall of 1962, some strange human remains were found in the vicinity of the Torres del Paine mountain peaks: they were those of a man who had stood between two and a half and three meters tall, and dated to an antiquity of 500 years. Proof that the Patagonian giants were not merely traveler’s tales.

A MUSEUM CONSPIRACY

In a 1995 interview with Alfonso Serra, Catalan mystery writer Miguel Aracil mentioned that an article of his had caused an uproar among Spain’s intellectual community when he levelled the accusation that some of that country’s museums held in their collections bones that proved the existence of giant humans. The maverick writer had been aided in this effort by a physician, Ana Capella, and a cartographer, Fernando Ledesma.

Aracil’s work suggests that the entire region of the Pyrenées—the mountain range separating Spain from France—was the home of true giants who may still endure to this day, becoming the source of numerous Bigfoot accounts. A considerable number of giant skeletons, he argues, have been unearthed beside the megalithic dolmen of Oren in the Cerdanya region. They were in the custody of a man in the village of Puillans until they were turned over to the Barcelona Museum of Archaeology, where they vanished altogether or were perhaps even destroyed.

The remains of a three-meter-tall giant were found at Garós (Pirineo de Lleida) according to another Catalan researcher, Joan O bios. The town priest was among those who studied the impressive bones, which have since vanished, causing some to believe that these remains were absconded with in order to preserve the anthropological and paleontological status quo.

“Both archaeology and history are "©giants with feet of clay," writes Miguel Aracil in one of his magazine articles. "Whenever it rains, so to speak, and new archaeological finds take place, their feet weaken further."

CONCLUSION

What would the lore of all human cultures be like without the presence of giants?

They are a fixture of folk tales and myth from Europe and the Americas to the farthest reaches of Asia. They are mentioned with equal ease in holy books and in fairy tales. Giants fill us with wonder and not inconsiderable envy as we marvel at their strength and feats. Those dwelling in the Middle Ages, caught in the turbulence of their troubled times, ascribed the engineering achievements of the Roman Empire to the work of giants. Giants may have been relegated to the realms of fable and sword-and-sorcery novels, but there is considerable evidence that beings of great size shared our world in primeval times.
Two days later he returned to the site with a ufologist the police referred him to, Hadassah Arbel. What they discovered remains one of the most lasting proofs ever left by a UFO of its physical existence. The flash emitted by the craft burned its image into the sands of Shikmona Beach. A fifteen meter ellipsoid disk was burnt black into the sand but what was more interesting was what wasn't burned. In the vegetation which wasn’t burned was a clear image of the pilot of the craft facing a control board.

Seven years later I sent samples of the burnt sand to the television show Sightings which subjected it to laboratory tests. The sand seemed to melt in the heat of the camera light. The reason later discovered was the sand particles were covered by a low melting hydrocarbon material. The laboratory could find no natural or human explanation for the phenomenon.

Ami Achrai’s incident was followed by a repeat performance on June 6, 1988 when a similarly shaped craft was once again burnt into the sands of Shikmona Beach, about 100 yards north of the first site. This was followed by the most spectacular display of all. On April 27, 1989, two teenagers witnessed a UFO explode into thousands of shards over Shikmona Beach.
By now, Israeli ufologists were prepared to handle the latest incident more scientifically. The beach was strewn with burning white metal which was cool to the touch. The metal even glowed in water. When picked up, the shards turned into a white ash. Scientists from the Technion Institute of Technology tested the site and found that magnetism was 6000 times higher than the surrounding area. The shards were found to be very pure magnesium.

Two hundred yards above Shikmona Beach is a biblical shrine called Elijah’s cave. Here Elijah preached and here or somewhere nearby in the Carmel Mountains, Elijah challenged the Canaanites to a duel of Gods. Two bulls were tethered and the gods were beseeched to roast them. Naturally, Baal failed the Canaanites but Elijah’s God sent a ray of light from heaven which cooked the bull on the spot. This ray must have been similar to the kind of beam which burned the sands of Shikmona Beach into a saucer shape. [watcher comments: The ray which Elijah’s God sent from heaven was similar to the that which burned the sand into a saucer shape, but not for the reason Chamish is suggesting. While the power source of Chamish’s two rays are distinct, the similarity results from the masterful counterfeiting by rebel angels masquerading as aliens in UFOs. Satan and his rebel angels seek to Imitate & Counterfeit the Creator, or as Satan declares: “I will be compared to the Most High - Isaiah 14:13”]

Within the Cave of Elijah is an ancient drawing of something that was the spitting image of the craft burned into the sands below. The Sightings team decided the image was a coincidence, perhaps it was a bat. When Michael Hesemann filmed the drawing he left certain it was a match for the burned sand pictures.

Although the cave drawing's meaning is in dispute, the fact of the modern UFO-burned inscriptions is not. Something unique occurred at Shikmona Beach. Alien craft decided to leave souvenirs there at least three times. By doing so, they revealed the dimensions of their craft and apparently pilot, as well as their construction material. These were not crop circles nor were they formed the same way. A very different message was left on Shikmona Beach's sands.

After the UFO explosion, there was a hiatus of UFO activity until 1993 broken only once in late 1991 over the village of Sde Moshe, some five miles from Kadima. There, after two straight nights of having the inside of his house lit up by an unexplained craft hovering above it, Eli Cohen captured the responsible UFO on videotape. Several minutes of the tape were filmed after daybreak making the result a most clear and convincing record of a UFO.

It seems the visitors were merely scouting the Kadima area in 1991 but they returned in force in 1993. And this time, the occupants of the crafts did more than merely hover in the sky. They brought souvenirs to Castille, so that His Majesty might see it. We therefore sent it, entrusting it to our first of our agents to go there…"

---

As the bloodthirsty Nuño de Guzmán pushed his way into northern Mexico to establish the province known as Nueva Galicia, he arrived at the site of modern Guadalajara and was startled to see a number of deserted cities of large size. His interpreters told him that these ruins were the foundations of the population centers occupied by the giant Quinametzin. Who were these unknown entities?

*Obras Históricas, a treatise written by an early chronicler of Mexican history, Fernando Lixtlochitl, discusses the belief among the Chichimec people of north central Mexico that the earliest arrivals in Mesoamerica had to displace a race of giants who occupied the land, echoing the exploits of Joshua on the other side of the world. Strife between the Quinametzin and ordinary humans appears to have been widespread, and memories of this war with another species were not confined to a given region. The Tlaxcalans and was startled to see a number of deserted cities of large size. His interpreters told him that these ruins were the foundations of the population centers occupied by the giant Quinametzin. Who were these unknown entities?

The earliest arrivals in Mesoamerica had to displace a race of giants who occupied the land, echoing the exploits of Joshua on the other side of the world. Strife between the Quinametzin and ordinary humans appears to have been widespread, and memories of this war with another species were not confined to a given region. The Tlaxcalans and the Quinametzin. Who were these unknown entities?

*Obras Históricas, a treatise written by an early chronicler of Mexican history, Fernando Lixtlochitl, discusses the belief among the Chichimec people of north central Mexico that the earliest arrivals in Mesoamerica had to displace a race of giants who occupied the land, echoing the exploits of Joshua on the other side of the world. Strife between the Quinametzin and ordinary humans appears to have been widespread, and memories of this war with another species were not confined to a given region. The Tlaxcalans and other species were not confined to a given region. The Tlaxcalans and the Quinametzin. Who were these unknown entities?

As the bloodthirsty Nuño de Guzmán pushed his way into northern Mexico to establish the province known as Nueva Galicia, he arrived at the site of modern Guadalajara and was startled to see a number of deserted cities of large size. His interpreters told him that these ruins were the foundations of the population centers occupied by the giant Quinametzin. Who were these unknown entities?

*Obras Históricas, a treatise written by an early chronicler of Mexican history, Fernando Lixtlochitl, discusses the belief among the Chichimec people of north central Mexico that the earliest arrivals in Mesoamerica had to displace a race of giants who occupied the land, echoing the exploits of Joshua on the other side of the world. Strife between the Quinametzin and ordinary humans appears to have been widespread, and memories of this war with another species were not confined to a given region. The Tlaxcalans and the Quinametzin. Who were these unknown entities?

As the bloodthirsty Nuño de Guzmán pushed his way into northern Mexico to establish the province known as Nueva Galicia, he arrived at the site of modern Guadalajara and was startled to see a number of deserted cities of large size. His interpreters told him that these ruins were the foundations of the population centers occupied by the giant Quinametzin. Who were these unknown entities?

*Obras Históricas, a treatise written by an early chronicler of Mexican history, Fernando Lixtlochitl, discusses the belief among the Chichimec people of north central Mexico that the earliest arrivals in Mesoamerica had to displace a race of giants who occupied the land, echoing the exploits of Joshua on the other side of the world. Strife between the Quinametzin and ordinary humans appears to have been widespread, and memories of this war with another species were not confined to a given region. The Tlaxcalans and the Quinametzin. Who were these unknown entities?

As the bloodthirsty Nuño de Guzmán pushed his way into northern Mexico to establish the province known as Nueva Galicia, he arrived at the site of modern Guadalajara and was startled to see a number of deserted cities of large size. His interpreters told him that these ruins were the foundations of the population centers occupied by the giant Quinametzin. Who were these unknown entities?

*Obras Históricas, a treatise written by an early chronicler of Mexican history, Fernando Lixtlochitl, discusses the belief among the Chichimec people of north central Mexico that the earliest arrivals in Mesoamerica had to displace a race of giants who occupied the land, echoing the exploits of Joshua on the other side of the world. Strife between the Quinametzin and ordinary humans appears to have been widespread, and memories of this war with another species were not confined to a given region. The Tlaxcalans and the Quinametzin. Who were these unknown entities?
Giants: Fact or Fiction?

For more in-depth information, check Steve Quayle’s Site re Genesis 6 Giants. His latest book "Giants" available now! http://stevequayle.com/index1.html

May 2006
By Scott Corrales
Fate Magazine

The autobiography of the Tibetan lama Chagdud Tulku (Lord of the Dance, California: Padma Press, 1992, pp. 110–111) contains a fascinating reference to a Tibetan mountain giant and how a seeker of mystical relics was able to come across its remains.

While on their way to the monastery of Chudo Gompa in the mountains to witness dancing and ceremonial pageantry, the lama and his retinue came across a stupa marking the site where the legendary hero Gesar had entombed a slain giantess in ages past.

A few months prior to Chagdud Tulku’s arrival, he writes, a seeker of treasure and holy relics known as a terton had stopped by the monastery to challenge the assertion that any unknown entity had been buried at that spot long ago. He had it on good authority, as the terton professed to be the incarnation of Shanpa, the hero Gesar’s companion.

“He was here when we put her under a big rock by the river,” he challenged the monks, urging them to prove him false by digging at the indicated spot.

His challenge was taken up and hasty excavations soon began at a location marked by the terton with a 25-foot circle. The digging took days, but a massive stone disk was found at the bottom; excitedly, the monks summoned the treasure finder to show him the results of their efforts.

“He supervised as they wedged poles under the rock to pry it up and support it,” writes Chagdud Tulku, and the monks and their gang of laborers were able to remove the massive remains, “the bones of a giantess whose upper arm had been more than five feet long.” The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogres had at once been endemic to the region and feasted on hapless humans until eliminated by the legendary hero Gesar. Because this was long ago. The author adds that these mountain ogre...
And if absolute proof that giants were about in Israel was needed, it came in December in the village of Yatzitz, twelve miles east of Rishon Letzion. The giants had opened a new axis after Kadima, a triangle of twenty miles linking Rishon Letzion, Holon and Yatzitz. Herzi Casatini, the village security chief and his friend Danny Ezra were sharing conversation when they heard an explosion and felt Ezra’s house shake. Herzi opened the door and stood face to face with a nine foot tall creature in metallic clothes whose face was hidden in “a haze.” He shut the door and called the police. They arrived and discovered deep boot tracks in the hard mud. The tracks sunk 35 centimetres into the ground meaning whoever made them had to have weighed, literally, a ton. Thinking there might have been a terrorist incursion, the army was called in.

Military trackers were totally stumped. The tracks carried on for 8 kilometres. The heel dug in only 5 cm. meaning whatever made the tracks was walking almost on tip-toes. If you can call it walking. Sometimes the distance between tracks was twelve feet, meaning the intruder was a world record holding broad jumper weighing about a ton.

The Yatzitz incident confirmed, even to the deepest skeptics, that giants were indeed sighted and they left proof that was nearly impossible to dispute. The best the Israeli authorities could come up with to explain the tracks was they were left by an unknown cult. It would have to be very unknown for records of cults whose ceremonies include dressing as giants and leaving miles of unidentifiable tracks are undoubtedly quite rare.

After Yatzitz, giant sightings were reported in Ramat Hasharon, Rehovot and Afula. And 1996 became a vintage year for UFO evidence gathering with a good dozen craft filmed. Two incidents stand out. In August, a UFO was filmed over three nights with professional equipment at Kibbutz Hatzor. The results include a close-up of what appear to be metallic equipment at Kibbutz Hatzor. The results include a close-up of what appear to be stones that melt ice immediately without a known energy source.

The Israeli UFO experience is unique and very complicated. I have touched on just one aspect of it; but it is vital to understanding the Israeli puzzle. Of the seven best documented close encounters with alien beings provably connected to UFOs, six involved giants. These giants were determined to leave evidence of their arrival in the form of cadmium-imbued landing circles, miles of impossible boot tracks and deliberate communication with witnesses. Indeed, the abundant evidence more than indicates that there are giants roaming Israel today.

As there were 5,000 years ago and they also left proof of their existence. The giants were descended from the Nephilim, literally the fallen ones. In ancient time, entities fell on Israel from the heavens and later became the mortal enemies of the Hebrew nations.

THE CIRCLE OF THE GIANTS - GILGAL. 5200-YEAR-OLD MONUMENT BELIEVED BY SOME TO HAVE BEEN BUILT BY THE BIBLICAL GIANTS, ALSO CALLED NEPHILIM.
One giant king was Og of Bashan. The bible records that his bed was thirteen feet long. Bashan's territory included the Golan Heights. Sitting on the Golan Heights is the Israeli version of Stonehenge. Called Gilgal Rephaim, the Circle of the Rephaim or giants in English, this site consists of five concentric rings whose beauty can only be appreciated from above. Unfortunately, there was supposedly no way for the simple nomads of 5000 years ago to see the circles from above.

The site is enormous. The outside circle has a diameter of 159 meters and over 37,000 tons of rock went into the construction of the complex. Two openings in the circles may have been used to measure the solar solstice and the rising of Sirius in 3000 BCE.

The fact remains that Israeli archaeologists are totally mystified by the Gilgal Rephaim. No other complex built in the Middle East resembles it and it predates the pyramids by over 500 years. The indigenous nomads of the time did not engage in this kind of megalith building, so outsiders were probably the builders. According to the Bible, the only outsiders living on the Golan Heights back then were giants.

Maybe it's a longshot, but no one has come up with a better explanation for Israel's current UFO wave. I believe the ancient giants may be coming home. I conclude on a somber note. The biblical giants were God's enemy and Israel's armies were the means to their utter destruction. There is a legitimate reason to contemplate the recent reappearance of giants in Israel with a good measure of dread.

Copyright © by Barry Chamish

Purchase Barry Chamish’s Book on UFOs in Israel: Return of the Giants for $10 downloaded pdf from www.thebarrychamishwebsite.com

2 Thes 2:9: Even him, whose coming is after the working of Satan with all power and signs and lying wonders, And with all deceivableness of unrighteousness in them that perish; because they received not the love of the truth, that they might be saved. And for this cause God shall send them strong delusion, that they should believe a lie ...

Matthew 24:24: For there shall arise false Christs, and false prophets, and shall shew great signs and wonders; insomuch that, if it were possible, they shall deceive the very elect.

Jesus Christ explained to his apostles what events would immediately precede his second coming. "For as in the days that were before the flood...until the day that Noe entered into the ark," Matt 24:38 , Luke 17:27. What is the significance of this statement and how does it relate to UFOs? The Flood epic Gen. 6 begins with a strange account of the "sons of God" (b'nai Elohim), taking wives among the daughters of Adam.

"There were giants in the earth those days; ... mighty men which were of old, men of renown."

The word which is translated, "giants", in the King James version of the Bible is, in Hebrew, "Nephilim", which means, "Those who fell, or... the fallen ones". Jude, the brother of Jesus describes them as "angels, having left their first estate in heaven". These fallen angels came to earth for a serious purpose.

The "fallen ones" sought to merge with the bloodline of Adam, because of the promise to send a redeemer through Adam's kinsman. The Hebrew says that the Sons of God saw that the women were a fit "extension", for they sought to extend themselves into this realm from the spirit realm, as well as to extend themselves into the "children of the promise" the lineage of Adam. Satan tried to prevent the eventual birth, in the distant future, of the Messiah.

The mating of human beings with angels resulted in hybrid creatures, evil spirits with human bodies. The human \ angel hybrids began to corrupt and destroy the human race, resulting in the Deluge, "the end of all flesh" except Noah and his family.

Scripture uses other names to describe these degraded fallen angels and their descendents in addition to the word Nephilim, they are: . . .

* REPAIM - from the root rapha = spirits, shades Gen. 14:5
* ANAKIM - race of giants Num. 13:33 descendents of Nephilim
* EMIM - the proud deserts, terrors, race of giants Gen. 14:5
* ZUSHIM - the evil ones, roaming things Gen. 14:5
* ZAMZUMMIM - the evil plotters, D.eut. 2:20
* ZOPHIM - watchers, angels who descended Num. 23, distinct from 'holy watchers' aligned with God

SEPHERIM - the many. . . .

The book of the Jubilees remarks that Jared or Yeh-red, an Old Testament patriarch, was so called because in his days the angels descended upon the earth - Yaw-rad "descend". It is interesting to note that "Jordan" comes from that same root word denoting "descent, coming down or falling" - Yar-dane "the place of the descent". Jordan, "place of descent", is located in the ancient boundary of Israel. Israel is currently a major location for sightings, and the fallen angels in disguise as "aliens".

The Book of Enoch explains that the Sons of God descended first onto the mountain called Hermon which in Hebrew means desolation, in the land of Jordan the place of the descent. The rebel angels intended to thwart God's plan for the earth by destroying the descendents of Adam. Satan's goal in organizing the nephilim/human hybridization program was to pollute the bloodline that would produce Jesus Christ, the Messiah, the Kinsman Redeemer. Now that it is so close to the end times, Satan has orchestrated human/angel interaction on a grand scale. The plan is now to prevent any flesh from being saved.

By genetically manipulating human genetics, whether through the guise of "alien abduction" or by supplying willing moral accomplices with the proper technology... there is currently being created humanoid hybrids who are not-quite-human. These genetically altered humans are no longer Sons of Adam, and no longer able to be saved by the Kinsman Redeemer. The second wave of hybrid "nephilim creation" is Satan's last effort to destroy all Sons of Adam, so that none can be redeemed when Jesus Christ returns at the End of the Age.
Antichrist Will Counterfeit Prophecy & Fool Israel

The Antichrist will SEEM Like the messiah - UFOs and Antichrist Linked - Mars and Antichrist - Antichrist Identity Anti Christ Counterfeit of Christ

When considering the identity of the antichrist, keep in mind he will SEEM like the Messiah of Israel.

The Second Coming of Christ

- Christ arrives at the end of a great war --Armageddon
- the war will end in fire for the enemies of Israel
- Christ comes with His holy ones, His raptured saints
- Christ sets up an era of peace as ruler of the earth
- Christ builds the Millennial Temple of Ezekiel 40

The Coming of Antichrist

- Antichrist arrives at end of a great war --Gog & Magog
- the war will end in fire for the enemies of Israel
- Antichrist comes with his “holy ones” -- aliens in UFOs
- Antichrist sets up era of peace under global dictatorship
- Antichrist allows building of Third Jerusalem Temple

The Angelic Conspiracy and End Time Deception

www.mt.net/%7Ewatcher/angelicconspiracy.html

Israel and End Time Prophecy - Gog Index - Israel Temple Mount - Arab and Mid East Tension Ezekiel Prophecy

www.gogindex.com/
The Giants of the Solomon Islands and Their Hidden UFO Bases

Marius Boirayon

Some of the Greatest Anthropological and Scientific Discoveries of Modern Man

Contained in this website is extraordinary information that brings to the forefront worldwide issues that has been tormenting intellectuals for centuries. It is about two phenomenal discoveries that I have found existing in the Solomon Islands and this Website is a further attempt once again to bring them to the attention of the Modern World.

The first discovery is about how the people of the Solomon Islands have shared their Island with ‘previously undiscovered to the modern world’ race of hominoids for millennia right to this present day, and for a variety of reasons explained, this has not been known about by the rest of the World, until now. The second discovery is about the whereabouts of hidden UFO Bases that I have found existing in the Solomon Islands for quite possibly the same amount of time, and how there seems to be a link between the Giants and the Extraterrestrials making the Solomon Islands their home.

For many reasons, these groundbreaking discoveries have compelled me to share them with the rest of the World. It has always been my sincere hope that hundreds of researchers follow up my work by going to the Solomon’s to continue on. Science is definitely a progression of new discoveries, and these are some of them.

The Solomon Islands people name the undiscovered hominoids mentioned “The Giants”, which is linguistically ironic for the isolated Solomon Islanders, as throughout history, including in the Bible and other prominent books, the same name has been used in other parts of the World to describe these huge elusive hominoids. To explain some facts about the Giant race existing in the Solomon Islands, I will use the Giants of Guadalcanal as an example.

“The Giants of Guadalcanal” are named as such by the Guadalcanal people, and from my observations they seem to be very similar to the Sasquatch, Bigfoot, Yeti, Yowie and such suspected to be found in other parts of the world. At this moment of time, there are hundreds, if not possibly thousands of these Giant people (and I use the word people for a reason) living inside the huge tropical rainforest Jungle Mountain ranges of Guadalcanal, as the Guadalcanal people will tell you. All claims made on this Website about the Guadalcanal Giants can be supported by the indigenous Guadalcanal people of the Island, as it totally plays the major part of their entire grass-roots culture, past and present.

Apart from being known for building timber base structures with sheltering sago palm and other leaf, they have vast cave systems running within the majority length of the mountains of this 200 plus kilomter long tropical Jungle Island. Some of the Guadalcanal Giants live in organised lifestyles with social structures, and I have come across many Guadalcanal people that believe they can go from east to west through their cave systems without seeing the light of day, and many believe that their population numbers in the thousands. The Guadalcanal Islanders also believe that there is a huge city of them living inside or underneath the big mountains of the Island. “Mount Tatuva” is definitely one of this city’s main entrances, and if anyone ever wished to film them, the closest villages to Mt Tatuva, where they are also seen regularly is a good starting point. But that is not everything.

On the map further up this Website is a reference to the “Mount Dragon UFO Base” entrance. This is definitely a current UFO Base used by Aliens. The entrance to this subterranean Base is a waterfall-lake about 2,500 feet high on the western side of a 5-kilometre long valley, and is approximately 8-kilometres from the coast.

I spent several months living in a village called “Chapuru”, of Cape Esperance, which is north on the coast from the “Subterranean Terrestrial UFO Base” (ST’s new word), and in this area, the Alien activity from this Base is seen of regularly, meaning like nearly every night. During the time I lived at this village, I began to lose count of these UFO sightings at around 60 times, but I do remember estimating that it would be 100 by now. The reason why I eventually called this unnamed mountain UFO Base entrance “Mt. Dragon” is because the Guadalcanal people who live in this area call these flying ‘balls-of-light’ UFO’s, “Dragon Snakes”.

To the people of Northwest Guadalcanal, as they have been observing these “Dragon Snakes” for well over a century, and most probably much longer, although they fear them because people have been killed, injured, or have gone missing due to them, they generally give them no more of a second thought unless in close proximity, as they can be found flying around in the area nearly every night. As an example of this accepted part of life, about a kilometre East from “Chapuru”, the village I once lived, the current Prime Minister of the Solomon Islands, Prime Minister “Sir Alan Kemakeza”’s main residence is found, and he has seen these UFO’s many more times than I have. “Ezekiel Alebua”, a once Prime Minister, the previous Guadalcanal Premier, and Guadalcanal Minister again, also knows of the Waterfall Lake UFO Base entrance. You can ask anyone from Northwest Guadalcanal about their UFO’s, and I mean anyone about them and they will tell you heaps, as they are seen of virtually every night and have been for well over a century. That is if the American led Australian Solomon Islands Government allows Tourism to continue in the Solomon Island’s and doesn’t place restricted no go zones everywhere.

As these sightings did not always become second nature to me, after some extensive investigation to find out where these UFO’s go when they were not flying around, over a six-day period there and back, myself and another Guadalcanal friend made an arduous trip to this UFO Base, and from a hidden position in the nearby mountains above it, was when we first discovered that there was more than one “UFO/Dragon Snake” using this place as one of their residence in the Solomon Islands. This Alien Base is still there today. Apart from all the people of the area, the best person to confirm this Base and its position is “Ezekiel Alebua”. Also, may I say, the current Solomon Island’s Prime Minister, “Sir Alan Kemakeza”, who I know, being from Guadalcanal, knows all about the Giant race existing on his Island, but was unaware of the real reasons why the Australian Prime Minister after many years all of a sudden had a change of heart and started offering assistance with a military interdiction immediately after he got back from visiting the American President.

You cannot tell me that the Americans, British and Australians do not know of these UFO Bases, because I have overwhelming proof that they do. The current ‘Solomon Islands Interdiction’ by the American led Australian multinational Forces has been named; “Operation Hlepem Friend”. No More! Hemi “Operation Containem, and Bringem Come Oil and Gas”. Incidentally, it was during my adventurous stay at this village that I first began to learn about the Giants of Guadalcanal also.

On the map below is shown the entrances of the UFO Base located in the Central East Coast of Malaita that I know of, and the location of the ‘Ramo mountain remnants’
Ramo civilisation built a perfectly fitting large stone block wall to support its northeastern section. This freshwater lake, although a few days hard trekking from the East coast of Kwao, is connected through an underground waterable of caesium making it tidal. Even though in the course of this unique lake’s far distance in the Jungle Mountains from the ocean, it goes up and down with the ocean tide. Because of its isolation throughout evolution, every different kind of strange looking fish and plants not found elsewhere in the world can be found within. Another interesting part about this strange place is that there is a Ramo (Giant) cave on the western edge which has a rare species of Hibiscus not found growing anywhere else in the Solomon’s, and most probably the world. Inside that Ramo cave is something very important, but I’ll keep that to myself at this time. Expeditionary tip: Be careful of the snakes that are in that area.

Some more expeditionary advise for those interested in this particular part of Malaita. As I happen to be the first Whiteman to marry a woman from this tribal area, take my advice. The first Whiteman who thinks he can just trek into this area without first gaining the permission of the “Chief’s of Kwao Fadunga”, and thinks that he would return safely is mistaken. Apart from once being renowned as the most ferocious headhunters of the Malaita, and culturally unique in the Solomon Islands through their compensatory customary ways, there is another reason for this of which I suppose I should explain.

The Paramount Chief of Kwao, Chief Miner Adne, has a book compiled with a large list of names of his tribe’s people that he says were killed in 1927 from the genocide that the Australian Government perpetrated upon them for the death of “M. William R. Bell”, the then District Commissioner of Malaita. Without going into the details of his death, in retaliation, the Australian Government sent the “HMAS Adelaide” with a contingent of army to “Singalanggu Harbour” of Kwao and over a short period of time, in an attempt to systematically eradicate them, mass murdered, raped and poisoned, according to the bereaved Paramount Chief, a significant number of men, women and children of their tribe. Overwhelming detailed evidence that this genocide occurred can be found in the book, “Lightning Meets The West Wind” written by “Professor Rodger Keesing,” seventeen years the head of Anthropology, Australian National University. To the Kwaio people, in their compensatory customary ways, because they have not received any compensation for this sad part of Solomon Island / Australian history, getting through this area, for some White people, would have its difficulties. Monetary gratuities would be an advantage though.

The Giants of the Solomon Islands have large Island entrapped populations in most of the bigger Islands of the Solomon’s, and have existed there for millennia. For those interested in pursuing this research further, it my sincere hope that the rest of the world becomes fully aware of the Solomon Giants and the long tumultuous history that the Solomon Islanders have endured at the expense of many lives. I have had a long time to consider the ethical impact that this discovery will bring upon mankind, and I can assure you that the monumental advantages gained by far outweigh all.

Our group in the Solomon Islands are seeking urgent financial assistance to continue this important work towards advancing humanity, and if there is anyone who can help us in this area, don’t hesitate in contacting us as soon as you can. We certainly need the help.

Known UFO Bases of the Solomon Islands

To my knowledge, this maybe the first time that somebody is telling the rest of the world about subterranean UFO Bases he has found. I suppose there is a first time for required, because they are all over the place and are seen on a daily basis somewhere around the Island. Actually, I can think of a dozen places around the Island apart from the Mt Tabua area that are good starting places for the beginnings of gathering documentary photographic evidence of them. For that matter, I can think of dozens of places around the Solomon Islands, and Vanuatu that would be the same.

Virtually, you can ask anyone from Guadalcanal, and for that matter the Solomon’s, if any of their recent ancestors, or themselves has had past exchanges with these Giants, and one finds a very positive response with many tales supporting their existence. I know for a fact that upon arriving within the Solomon Islands, one can ask the first person they see as to whether the Giants can be found there, and they’ll start pointing in every direction, and if not, they’d quickly steer you onto someone who would tell all about them.

To my understanding, there are three different species or types of these Giants. The larger and more commonly seen are over 10 foot tall, but I have come across numerous Islander accounts with evidence that supports that they do grow much taller than that. These Giants have very long black, brown or reddish hair, or a mixture and when they want to have a good look at you, they pull it aside from their face with one hand. They have a protruding double eyebrow, bulging red eyeballs, and flat nose wide gapped mouth facial features, and have an unmistakable odour which the coastal people would once use as a sign of their presence, depending on the wind. From the large hairy type, they range down in size with reducing amounts of body hair. The smaller version, although bigger than normal human beings, are like a wild man living in the jungle and are not as hairy as the big ones. This is the way the Guadalcanal Islanders describe them. Inherently, when they see these small giant half human people, they make efforts to kill them. These smaller versions are lower down in the Giant social order, living predominately outside their caves systems in the jungle, although all three (types) are found in the Island’s jungle. Incidentally, there are many newspaper reports, even recently, of these hairy Giants in Papua New Guinea, and also may I say that I know for a fact that the Vanuatu people have also had a similar past with their Giants as the Solomon Islanders have had, as those that follow up on my research will find out.

I must point out, that the Solomon Islanders, and I suppose the PNG and Vanuatu people are lacking understanding that their Giant race living with them are something big in scientific discoveries to the rest of the World. Whether by intellectual design or not, it is appropriate that the Solomon Island’s National logo is “The Place That Time Forgot”. This is a map of west Guadalcanal showing where a huge... population of them can be found on that Island. As a thumb-rule, this approximate 1,000 square kilometre area of heavy mountainous jungle of the western section of this half-map of Guadalcanal, that doesn’t have dots as signs of inhabitation, are the free territory of the Guadalcanal Giants. Although the Giants are found all over the Island, more often than not, the dots seen are merely 2-3 village huts indicative of inter-related tribal areas. Further, and of significance, is the fact that although land-possession is highly regarded by Guadalcanal people, and the Solomon Islanders, this 1,000 square kilometre area does not belong to any particular tribe, and there is a good reason for that too, which once again, can be easily found out by just asking any Guadalcanal person. For those Solomon Islanders seeing this Website for the first time, in particular Choiseul and Isabela please excuse that I didn’t put a map of your Island on and discuss the similar situations that you have on your Islands.

Guadalcanal is rich with Gold, a fact that the Europeans discovered centuries ago. Thirty years ago, different Gold mining companies started negotiating with the traditional landowners with “Memorandums of Understanding” in order to capitalize on this gold. A succession of failed attempts followed until of these recent years when ‘Ross Mining’ broke through with a 3% to the indigenous deal. In 1998, at “the Gold Ridge”, central north Guadalcanal where the mine was being built, they got going with their bigger type of mining bulldozers pushing in roads and clearing the mine area. The mine borders the Giant’s territory, and it would appear that the Giants are quite territorial. On one particular occasion, one of these huge bulldozers broke down with one of the pins on the blade attachment rendering useless. As it was late in the afternoon, they decided to drop the blade there and take the bulldozer back to the workshop to do the repairs overnight to continue on the next day. When they returned the next morning, the blade had disappeared. All the boys became confused. How could such a heavy object vanish? Mind you, we’re talking about ten tons plus. So they started scouting around in the bush looking for it and happened to notice giant footprints around 3-foot in length close by where the blade had been left. Finally, some 100 odd meters away on a small nearby hill, one of the boys called out, “Here it is!” From further footprint investigation, they deduced that the Giants had not carried it there, but had thrown it, or it got there some other way.

By the way, this current inoperative Gold Mine at the Gold Ridge, which from the Island’s geology reports is small in comparison to the potential of several other areas, has an estimated 20 Billion Australian dollars of Gold still remaining.

Some years ago, as I had once been working as a Helicopter pilot/engineer, I was asked by a boss helicopter pilot of an American fishing fleet that had helicopters, to look after their spare parts required, as Australia was closer than Guam. The job lasted six weeks and I was handsomely paid for my little effort. The office I took was just opposite the old Guadalcanal Provincial Headquarters, and at lunchtimes I would sometimes go across the road and have a few beers there with the then Guadalcanal Premier, and Victor the Finance Minister. It was during one of these lunchtimes that they told me of a Giant encounter they had just had some months prior. Both the Premier, who is now a National minister, and Victor, who is now a Guadalcanal minister again, had decided to go to the Gold ridge to survey the area of the proposed Gold mine. They took their twin-cab Toyota Hilux mid afternoon and drove up there. It’s quite a drive and after passing a few villages on the way they arrived at the mine area. A bulldozer had craved out a road, and as sometimes it rains frequently, the road around the side of a hill had become slippery, and they slipped of the road’s edge and became bogged. They made some effort trying to get back up onto the large blocks of stone were quarried is miles down the mountain range on the west coast near the sea. It is too long to explain just now how I know this. Incidentally, the indigenous of this area are quite jealous protective of this site, but that should not be too much of a problem by using monetary gratuities if you wished to visit this place. A helicopter is advisable. I have told people about this place, but like everything else, for one reason or another, nobody believes me. It has been there for a few thousand years already, so I suppose it will still be there in a few thousand years more.

In Kwaio, Central East Malaita, a place where my wife comes from, they have stone-block structures with strange inscriptions upon them deep in the bush. I have seen pictures of this same ‘Ramo (Giant) language’ in a book written by an Australian ‘Yowie’ Researcher. No doubt Papua New Guinea, The Solomon Islands, Vanuatu, Fiji, and obviously Australia all have the same. In Malaita, these sometimes-large stone structures with ancient Ramo writing chiselled into them are considered with reverence to those people of the bush nearby where they are located. For instance, my wife’s grandfather, a famous man of Kwaio, is buried close to a four-foot rounded edge Ramo stone block structure with Ramo, or Giant race writing upon it. By the way, “Ramo” is a common word used by the Malaitan people to describe anyone with superior warrior characteristics. Another Malaitan meaning for “Ramo” is; “Man who eats man”. Also, for those that follow up on my research, you will find that the names chosen by the “Malaitan Shipping Company” for their ships are; Ramos I, Ramos II, and Ramos III. There is a reason for that. When you find out some of the Malaitan history in regards with what they went through with “the Ramo of Malaita”, it is absolutely horrifying and unparalleled anywhere else in the world’s history, and that goes for Guadalcanal and the rest of the Solomon Islands. To a greatest extent, through examining their psychology, this accounts to me for why the individual Island’s people’s overall personalities from the different Solomon Islands, following their own grass-root cultures related to worshipping their particular Island’s Giant race, are different from one another and is the cause of why they are the way they are today, and nothing to dramatic ever seems to faze them.

There is an area of Kware’ae, north of Kwaio, where there is a large burial kind of cemetery area in their jungle with literally thousands of Giant Ramo skeleton bones scattered upon the ground. I do not know whether this was actually a Ramo cemetery, or whether the locals a few hundred years ago gathered them there. One village not far away from this area has as one of the huts main support poles, a Ramo femur bone that measures near 8-foot. They estimated this particular Ramo to have been over 24-foot tall, which doesn’t surprise me, as many of their folklore stories support them being this tall. Further, on Guadalcanal, where the Giants can still be found, I know that some do get this big. Although it is generally believed by the Malaitan people that their Ramo civilisation disappeared several hundred years ago, I have come across evidence that some might still exist in the vast wilderness of their Jungle Mountains.

One day, I’m sure these next discoveries I’m about to mention will be of great interest to Naturalists and a variety of Scientists. In 2001, Australian Scientists found a previously unknown botanical species they called the “Wallamine Pine tree” (or something similar) in an isolated gorge of New South Wales, but that’s nothing compared to the isolated patch of jungle rainforest that can be found in Kwaio that has every different kind of jungle plants and trees (and most probably insects) definitely not found anywhere else in the Solomon Islands, and to our knowledge, anywhere else in the world. Not far away from this geographically isolated unique patch of rainforest, is a small lake that some of the Isabelle, has big Giants still living there in two different areas, but their population is far fewer than that of Guadalcanal. Central Northeast and central north are the two areas where they can be found on that Island, but just ask anyone there and they will steer you in the right direction. “Makira”, which is east to Guadalcanal, has only the small super-strong dwarf-like Giants, which I forgot to mention can be found on Guadalcanal too. These are another type of hominoid race that can be found living in the Solomon Islands. They exist not only on these two Islands, but no-doubt on many other Solomon Islands and definitely Vanuatu also.

In 1996, there was a front-page picture of one of these four-foot “Chowa-Chowa” in the “Solomon Star newspaper”. He wondered into a village near the Gold Ridge, and so they put a pair of shorts on him and took him to Honiara to show him off. The picture has him being lead hand-held down the main street with hundreds of indigenous following. There was one other time a similar occurrence happened that was in the newspaper. This was around 1991 when another one of these “Chowa-Chowa” did a similar thing. Another pronunciation is “Cho-Cho”. The Australian Aborigines speak of a similar little reddish hairy man that they call the “Jungarre-Man”. Other cultures around the world have the same. I know of stories where men have seen these little people in the bush, and they display the extraordinary ability of being able to jump considerably distances. I’m not particularly that interested in them, but might I say that they must live socially somewhere. Peter tells me he knows where they could be found, but one thing at a time. As an example of some Solomon Islanders, Peter’s Great Grandfather and his father worshipped the Giants, so he knows a fair bit about them, like many other Solomon Islanders I know do.

“Malaita” has a very rich history with these Giant people. It is all too much to put down now, but I’ll briefly give you some of my research. “The Ramo of Malaita” are the same species as “The Giants of Guadalcanal”, but were, in the Malaitan case, culturally different to that of Guadalcanal. When you get into understanding the old grass-roots customs and cultures of these different Island’s people, you find that they follow that of their particular Island’s Giant race culture. This is difficult to explain without virtually writing an essay on it. Their folklores stories of prominent Giant encounters are different, and portray their Giants fittingly to their own cultures. For instance, the Malaitan Ramo was known to use a huge ‘Subi’ (A long flat elongated diamond shaped club style weapon). Even though in my estimation the last of the Ramo was approximately 600 years ago, and I maybe wrong, the Malaitan people still have this weapon and they can be found as ornaments everywhere on the Island. One day, we will find out that this Island was once the centre of a vast civilisation of these Giant people that were spread throughout the Southwest Pacific as far away as Fiji, and possibly further.

Of great significance, I would like to draw your attention to the fact that there is much remnants of this lost civilisation of the Giant race scattered in different parts of Malaita. I say ‘Civilisation’ for a very good reason. Around a mountain near “Mt. Malia” of North Malaita’s interior, is a perfectly fitting large stone blocked wall path spiralling around the mountain. This path leads to a flat area on the top of the mountain of where another large stone blocked wall separates to a higher split-level flat area where an altar can be found. Some hundred metres further on is a burial site that has a perfectly flat approximately 18ftx6ftx1ft stone upon it. The bush people further away from that area say that a Ramo of great importance is buried there. There are also hieroglyphic inscriptions chiselled into these stone block walls. Several years ago when they were cutting the bush back a little to expose this area more, they also found pottery and other items. The area from where these road, but decided to walk back to the last village that they had passed and get a bunch of boys to come help pull it out. Obtaining thirty odd men they walked back. As they were rounding the last comer to where the 4WD was bogged, they saw the 4WD back up on the road with two huge Giants standing one in front of the vehicle and other behind. Inherently, their first reaction was for all of them to run away screaming in absolute fear. They told me that when they got the courage up some half-hour later, they all returned to find that the Giants had gone. Obvioulsy, I asked how tall were they? They told me that the taller of the two was the one that lifted the front of the vehicle up onto the road, and when they inspected the footprints, each had picked the vehicle up by putting one foot on the road and the other near the vehicle. Pointing out the window to a tree, the Premier said; “About that high”, which I estimated to be over fifteen foot, which matched the size of the 3-4 feet footprints they had described.

The Guadalcanal people, and many others, all know the story of “Mango”, whom passed away two years ago. She had been kidnapped by the Giants fifty years ago and spent 25 odd years with them, and like them all they had given her up for dead until she was found pregnant, hysterically frothing from the mouth in a garden on the Northeast coast. A Giant had taken her as a wife. When the men realized who she was, they tried capturing her, but because her skin was as slimy as an eel, they found it difficult holding her. One of the men got an ingenuous idea and got some particular rough-sided leaves of which they used to hold her down and tie up with vine. Understandably, she was mentally unstable for the remainder of her life, but through her pregnancy she gave birth to a half-cast boy. The bastard boy lived to the age of five when one of Mango’s brothers slaughtered him. Peter and a few other friends of mine know where he is buried. Mango is just one of many that this type of thing has happened too, but you don’t have to believe me, just ask them. There are quite a few more.

Apes and Monkeys cannot breed with Homo sapiens. Where do I think the Giants came from? I believe that they are a surviving species of hominoid that had branched off well before Neanderthal man and have developed throughout evolution to be what they are today. The Guadalcanal people also believe that the Giants were there before they were. I know for a fact that their gene pool allows them to breed with us, as those that follow-up on my research will find out. The Guadalcanal Giants are definitely some sort of surviving species of Hominoid once closely related to Homo sapiens, as scientists tell us that it is genetically impossible for Homo sapiens to breed with Apes and Monkeys. Still living today on Guadalcanal, and goodness know where else, are crossbred descendants from the Giants. Just ask any Guadalcanal person, and they’ll tell you about them and where they are living, but here’s some examples I know of. Apart from the two huge tall half-cast Giant women that can be found living at Northeast Guadalcanal, there are half-cast and quarter cast huge men who have eight-cast children to Guadalcanal women, which are still living today at Tangarare of the Weather Coast of Southwest Guadalcanal. Anyone can go and see these huge inter-species-bred people. Even though “Silver” died in the early 1990s, “Genny” his son and his children, some who have breed themselves, are still alive. The huge quarter-cast Giant Genny is renown by the people of his area for being able to selfishly eat a whole pig by himself, bones and all. And that includes crocodiles too. A few funny stories about this extraordinary man are included within a book soon to be released made available at the end of this Website.

DNA sample from the Giants, and of their cross-breed human descendants for analysing/research would be an invaluable tool for many future developments in genetic technology and medical remedies that might be still thought impossible, and would unequivocally prove their origins. Further, in 2002, a Scientist/Doctor of the University of Papua New Guinea mapped the DNA of the Melanesian people and found slight differences from that of other Homo sapiens like Europeans, which he said, he found bewildering. I would like to speculate that I might have an answer to his wilderment. It is quite possible that over thousands of years, Papua New Guineans, Solomon Islanders and the Vanuatu people have had their DNA slightly altered because of occasional sporadic interbreeding from their Giant race from their Islands. Why are the Giants around the world so secretive and universally shy to be seen or known of? As those that follow on from my research will find out, this is not exactly the same case in the Solomon Islands, but I have an answer to this difficult question, of which I’ll attempt to answer it towards the end of this Website, but may I say I’m sure within the next decade we will found out as to whether I was correct.

Like with Homo sapiens and other Hominoids, the Solomon Giants are both carnivorous and herbivorous, as most Guadalcanal and some Solomon Islanders would bear testament. These ‘whatever type’ of Hominoid people have, until in recent history, considered the coastal Human beings of Guadalcanal and the Solomon’s to be a reliable source of food, somewhat similar as another meat to be eaten, if required. Over the millennia, many thousands of Guadalcanal and Solomon Islander people have lost their lives by being cannibalised by these Giants; hence the reason being the major part of their history and grass-root cultures. During my limited research about the existence of the Solomon Giants, I found that the Giants had actually considered the Solomon Island people like ‘pigs to be eaten’. This primitive type of Neanderthal thinking tragically lead to coastal children being penned up into cages and rose to be eaten when they were bigger. There are numerous handed-down folklore/custom stories of where the Giants would once storm villages, dousing the locals and ripping limbs off and eating them right there and then, while all run in absolute terror. Also, there are many about what they called “ Killer Giants” who would persistently return to make a meal out of them. Sometimes there were groups of these ‘Killer Giants’. Within the book, “The Giants Of The Solomon Islands”, soon made available at the end of this Website is a recorded a well-known Guadalcanal folklore/custom story of an incident that happened at the Weather Coast of southwest Guadalcanal where a village idiot managed to kill “five Killer Giants brothers” exacting revenge on behalf of his people and in return gaining the hand of the Paramount Chief’s daughter and a few other things.

It is my belief that one of the major reasons why the Solomon Islanders, and Vanuatu populations are far smaller than they should be is because, just as an example, over five thousands of years through the Giants of the Islands considering the people as food to be eaten, those people never had the opportunity to breed. Even if it was fifty people a year that were cannibalised, and just only over five thousand years, then that’s two hundred and fifty thousand people that never bred. Unfortunately, the statistics of the Giant’s cannibalism is far worse than that, as those that follow up on my research will find out.

There is one Giant, who is famously known to the Guadalcanal people for being responsible for taking them off the menu. “Luit Mikode” who still is the “Chief of the Giants”, changed the murderous behaviour of the Giants towards the Guadalcanal people forever in the “Giant Wars” of the early 20th Century that were fought against clans that oppose these changes. When you find out the story about how he change the rest of the Giant’s attitudes of cannibalising the Guadalcanal people about a century ago, you will be ing the bidding of other world governments, to stop the rest of the world knowing the real truth of the Solomon Islands, and hopefully at the same time gaining the massive oil reserves of the Solomon’s like East Timor, and some other resources, they are in a ‘no win’ situation, at least with the Giants. For instance, perish the thought that they think that they can just waltz into the jungles of Guadalcanal and take on the Giants, as many of them would not come back. It would be similar to the movie “Predator”, and what the Japanese experienced in World War II. Explaining their lose to the relatives of the dead, and to the rest of the media of the world would be interesting. As Giants can be found on other Islands of the Solomon’s, containing the entire Solomon Island’s is impossible. Without even considering the know UFO Bases of the Solomon’s of which their American bosses have been capitalizing on for some time now, if they attempt to contain the entire 1,900-kilometre length of the Solomon Islands, they better invade Vanuatu also, as they have Giants and little hairy undiscovered hominoids there too. Just ask them. It would be a grave crime against the world, if any harm were to come to the Giants. It is my sincere hope, that one day when this discovery breaks through, that certain sections of the Solomon Islands becomes “World Heritage”, and I lobby the scientists of the world, and the International community to make sure that happens. More on this unfolding subject is found within the book soon made available at the end of this Website.

From ‘The Borderline’ very near Mount Austin, and further up the road past the Japanese Memorial are three Guadalcanal tribes. ‘Simba’ is one of those tribes, and living not far away from them is an old couple of retired big Giants. (A male and a female). Ask any of the tribes up that way and they will tell you all about them, as it is common knowledge and they have been numerous seen of. I had thought of filming there many times, but I have been the victim of unusual circumstances always preventing this. “Joseph” is the name of the Paramount Chief of that area. During the ‘ethnic conflict’ of 2,000, many residence fled Honiara to the jungles behind. These fleeing people spotted these two Giants on a number of occasions during that time. Actually, a short cut to get to the area of where they are living is by following the track that leads on over the other side of the creek at the southern end of the Botanical gardens behind the Honiara Prison. But, gaining permission from Joseph with measured gratuities would be a better idea. Around that area also are a number of ex-Giant caves that you can look through and film. One day, these will be archaeological and anthropological sites worth digging up. The area is rich with many folklore stories pertaining to their tumultuous historical relationship with their Giants, but so is everywhere else on the Island, and for that matter, everywhere else in the Solomon Islands. Virtually, every big Island in the Solomon’s has commonly known folklore stories of their Giant people.

Enough about the Guadalcanal Giants for time being. All the larger Islands of the Solomon’s have Giants living in them, but each of these Island people call them different names. “Moo-Moo”, like the cow noise, is the universal Solomon Islander name for this huge race of Giant people. “Choiseul” which is a three hundred long by eighty kilometres wide Island to the western extremity of the Solomon’s has just as many Giant people living in its interior as Guadalcanal. When you observe the map, you’ll notice that there is not one village in the interior, and there is a very good reason for that. Actually I have sometimes wondered why they were always trying to take each other’s Island territory back in the head-hunting days, and I thought maybe that it had something to do with them always trying to get away from being eaten by these Giant people on their own Islands. But little did they know that they would have had the same problem no matter where they went.
blown away. It is absolutely amazing, and through my research I have proven it to be true. Although I do not everything about the Solomon Giants, I believe that the Giant’s cannibal-ism towards the coastal people of other large Solomon Islands halted for three main rea-sons, and I’ll just mention them. “The Guadalcanal Giant War”, their association with the extraterrestrials inhabiting Guadalcanal and other Islands, and the advent of being discov-ered by modern Whiteman starting to occupy the Solomon Islands. Topics within this para-graph are found within the book made available at the end of this Website.

How do I know that Luti Mikode is still alive? Apart from many people telling me that he is, and the fact that the Giants are believed to have a far greater longevity than that of Homo-sapiens, one of the Bishops of the Solomon Island’s Anglican Church met him in a garden in 2000 to discuss the ethnic war, during the Solomon Island Tension. How did Luti Mikode know that the Bishop was having a retreat back at his village? Apart from it being on the radio, the only thing I can work out and it sound ridiculous to some, there must have been some spiritual dimension to it, which apparently the Giants have abundance of. The bishop met Luti Mikode one more time after that, just ask him or the Solomon Island’s Broadcasting Corporation (SIBC) as this was all reported on the news around that time. It’s a strange place for things like that!

I do not know if the Giants of Guadalcanal ever had technology before, but they certainly do have now. In fact, I know that they have had a lighting system within their cave dwellings for at least the past 50 years now that has no obvious light source, such as bulbs and lamps, but somehow inside the mountains, it is just like daytime from what the eyewitnesses that have been captured and released have told me. There is a reason why I use the word ‘technology,’ because other independent credibly eyewitnesses have told me of happenings that overwhelmingly supports this. Once again, I best not go into it, as at the moment it is just good enough to know that they exist.

Guadalcanal, Malaita, Choiseul, Isabelle and Makira have literally hundreds of caves and remnants of Giant artefacts, and on these Islands anyone can visit many them. Some Giants of old would bury their dead in a similar fashion as Jesus was first with a stone rolled across the tomb’s entrance. “Ezekiel Alebu,” a once Prime Minister and the previous Guadalcanal Premier whom asked me to make the Giants happen for them, knows of a burial cave at East Guadalcanal that his father took him too when he was a child. Within that cave, there is a perfect approximate 15-foot Giant skeleton laid out. Through unusual circumstances, I never got to see it, but I now know of many more, and so does many others I know.

Just prior to the Solomon Tension, some Tangarare men (SW Guadalcanal) went to see the Giants for advice about what they should do. They did not follow their advice, and so when they went back the second time, as they had not followed their advice, the Giants told them that it’s all up to them now, and told them to get lost. Surprisingly enough that was all reported on the Solomon Island Broadcasting Corporation’s news. When a Whiteman hears such things, and there are plenty of them, for some reason it has always just gone straight over their heads and they haven’t even got a little curious. Well I do!

Just briefly, you can ask nearly anyone in the Solomon Islands, most certainly Guadalcanal about this particular incident. Of ne night, sometime during 1960’s, for some reason I never found out, the Giants went through Honiara and smashed the town to pieces. This is well known of story of recent Guadalcanal Giant history. Mind you they’re plenty of them.

At Christmas of 2002, I was sitting on my veranda around lunchtime with my wife... and a few others when a couple of men came running up to tell us that a family working in their garden, not far away from where we were, had seen a huge Giant casually wondering along in the tall grass of the hillside above their vegetable garden. When we eventually caught up with this family, they told me he made no effort to hide himself during the few minutes he was nonchalantly walking along. They said that he had actually paused for a moment to pull his hair aside to have another look at them as they were leaving the garden.

The Guadalcanal ‘Giants’ and the Malaitan ‘Ramo’s’ write language, as those that follow on from me will find out that there are countless ancient stones block walls and stone objects with inscriptions chiselled into them. While I’m mentioning language and such, a curiosity I came across and a theory to it. The Guadalcanal people’s language and the Fijian language are very, very close. There are over one hundred common words that they both share. Meaning that a Guadalcanal person can go to Fiji and speak Fijian within a week and vice versa, as my good friend and partner ‘Peter Cadi’ found out when he and his music band did a tour over there. The Guadalcanal Giants language is very similar in dialect as to the Guadalcanal people. It is my belief, and others that there once was a huge civilization of these Giant people spread throughout the southwest Pacific as far away as Fiji and beyond, well before Homo sapiens arrived. I have much evidence about this, too much to put down just now, but I’ll touch on it more later, when I briefly get onto the “Ramo of Malaita”, personally my favourite.

Over the centuries, as the Giants had an appetite for humans, and that they were easy to catch, the Guadalcanal people offered ‘instead-off’ sacrifices to them where the Giants would come out of the forest to receive them. Although that did not stop the cannibalism to any get extent. Still today, there are men that can and sometimes do this practice, like at a village nearMt. Tavana. The pigs have to be white pigs without spots. They include Guadalcanal beetle-nut-lime, which is ground from freshwater snail shells. Also Guadalcanal custom-money, which is four or five strings together with small shells laced upon a strand length. This also has to be white shell money. Shell money or custom money is the original currency used in the Solomon Islands, and still can be used instead of dollars and cents. In a sacred clearing, these are placed and by methods of calling known to those it was passed down to from generation to generation, and by burning eel bones, which irresistible to them, the Giants soon arrive to take their offering. By the way, the pigs on Guadalcanal, and no doubt a few other places in Melanesia have learnt through evolution not to use any of the Giant’s tails or tracks, and they don’t. In Tangarare, a big area SW Guadalcanal, some of the Giants put barriers across their track entrances to stop the Homo sapiens from inadvertently using them.

It is well known that Giants do not like fire, possibly because of their long hair. When one is to travel through Giant territory, it is advisable to take a pressure pack can with a lighter along just in case. Some months ago, Ezekiel Alebua told me of an incident that happened on the “Weather Coast”, south Guadalcanal, in 2000 during their ethnic conflict.

Five Tangarare men went hunting pig with their bow and arrows and during their hunt they lost track of time. As it was getting late and the weather was ominously turning to rain, they decided to build a sago palm hut quickly to camp the night. The hut had a roof with sago palm walls. At night with rain pelting down, as they were sitting around a fire within the hut, a huge hand and arm came through the hut’s wall. An inquisitive Giant had lent over the hut and was feeling around for what was inside. The five men starting screaming and using sticks from the fire to beat the monstrous hand away. Apparently, horrified they ran straight through the back wall of the hut into the darkness of the bush. When they found each other the next morning down on the coast, they had been spread out over a several kilometres.

This brings me to theory about World War II and the Japanese occupation of Guadalcanal. There is a mystery that has never been solved about why there were no Japanese to initially resist the Allied Forces at Red Beach and Henderson Airfield when they first arrived. (Interestingly, the Howard led Australian intervention force; in another attempt to emulate the Americans have heroically used Red Beach again to arrive on) When the Allied Forces arrived, they were expecting to loose one in two, but instead there was no one to be found. This was uncharacteristic of the Japanese and of any other island campaigns. They fought to the very last. Why did such a large force of Japanese flee? I believe I have the answer to that one, and it’s not the way history has written it.

I believe that the Japanese encountered the Giants in the centre of the Island, and most probably some others and quite a few lost their lives, because the Giants and those others would have definitely been on the Guadalcanal people/Solomon Islander/Allied side. Circumstantially, in 1999 the Japanese were just about to do a ‘2,000’ strong military exercise (or as they say) in the middle of Guadalcanal, but the ethnic tension stopped that. I find it more than a coincidence that now all of a sudden the Australian Government has decided to send the 2,000 plus strong military contingent (a little bit of a overkill) to the Solomon’s, to only help restore ‘law and order’ to a little town like Honiara, and to rounding up a few small rag-tag mobs on Guadalcanal and Malaita. I’m positive this does not require two multi-million dollar spy planes, a minesweeper, patrol boats, satellite surveillance, 2,000 plus men and a 300 million dollar a year commitment for 10 years, although I’m sure at this present time, this initial overseas boost to the economy, and stabilising the economically broke country is much appreciated by most.

Apart from the potential very rich fishing industry and sustainable rainforests of the Solomon’s, there are; the six huge ‘light crude’ oil and gas basins (just the Indispensable Basin alone being 2,200 sq klims), the high-concentrated several vast Gold deposits of Guadalcanal and those of Choiseul, the large quantities of emeralds, sapphires, rubies, garnets, zirconium etc, and recently found diamonds of Malaita, the mammoth Copper deposits of Choiseul 3 times bigger than that of neighbouring Bougainville, the two large Nickel deposits of Isabelle, the two huge Titanium oxide deposits of Royal Harbour, Malaita, and a few others, of which were deliberately never mentioned by the dozen odd Australian Government Advisers to the Solomon Island’s Prime Minister’s Office over the past two years. The Advisors to Prime Minister’s Office, the people in charge of the Treasury, and the Central Bank have all been predominately Australian Government workers for the past two years. They calculatingly helped bring the country to its knees. With regards to the Japanese of W.W II, there are too many unexplained questions of which, apart from the Guadalcanal Giants being in the centre of the Island, I have extra evidence of something that totally supports my claims. Ask “Ezekiel Alebua”, my down-to-earth friend, about the Japanese War Memorial Statue, and I think you will find that he will come up with the same conclusions as I have, and no doubt the Japanese did. If some of the information of my findings within this Website is mind-blowing enough for the average ‘Joe Blow’ around the World, then what I am about to discuss will really spin them out, but it doesn’t for many Guadalcanal Islanders who knows that it is true, including Ezekiel Alebua, some National Ministers, Anglican Bishops, Priests and the majority of the Guadalcanal